Excerpt: . . . When, in March 1877, the bill passed which established the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station as a State institution, many letters came from friends who had watched and sympathized with Professor Johnson's life work. On April 7, Mr. Luther H. Tucker wrote: Accept my congratulations on the success of your efforts thus far and their prospect of usefulness in the future. Mr. Goodale closed a letter of this period with the words: I was rejoiced to learn from the papers that the Experiment Station is to go to New Haven and be under your direction. I trust there is no mistake about it. Tardy justice and right doing is better than postponement forever or till too late. Professor Storer wrote: Jamaica Plain, Mass. , 19 Apr. 1877. My dear Johnson: --I congratulate you most heartily! Occasionally as now, the Eternal Fitness of Things is vindicated, and it is a real pleasure to witness the event. I have never had the least knowledge of the ins and outs of your Conn. Agric. politics, but have sworn some frequently at what seemed to be evidences that the Patriarch of our Sci. Agric. might probably be cheated out of his birthright and workright. Long ago I made a memorandum of questions to be asked of you concerning your attitude and position in re Agric. Station. . . . Pray come on when you can--(and tell me among other things why you esteem maize grain to be too nitrogenous...
